Martin Zebracki: (De)Facing Public Art through a Digital World 4/9

Monday, April 9 4:00PM - 6:00PM
Wurster 270

Dr Martin Zebracki will talk about real-world consequences of actions and reactions that are indicative of what Olga Goriunova has termed a ‘new media idiocy’. He will ask how the digital mediation and the geometry of digitally networked space can be the giver, or taker, of the social and spatial meaningfulness and inclusiveness of public art practices. Are we facing a new world of (false) digital connectedness and immediacies? More
Attention Faculty: Call for Courses 4/9

GUH Certificate Program

The Global Urban Humanities Initiative lists courses addressing urban topics from many departments in the arts and humanities, social sciences, environmental design and beyond. If you are a faculty member and would like your undergraduate or graduate course listed as an elective for our Certificate programs, please email vidya.bhamidi@berkeley.edu. We also welcome suggestions from students and staff!

Hostile Urbanism

Responses to Hostility in Cities, 6:00 - 7:00pm Register
The Hostility of Seclusion, 7:00 - 7:30pm Register

What are the consequences of hostile spaces on crime in cities? How can policy and design make more welcoming and balanced societies? How do visible and invisible microaggressions lead to prolonged hostility in an urban environment? What propagated homelessness to this extent in the city with the richest people in the world? Is it under the realm of Urban Design to address issues of mass-exodus? Are secure societies not responsible for the assistance of vulnerable ones? Isn't seclusion a violent act?

Speakers include Kris Kepler (Lava Mae) and Eri Suzuki.

Community Urbanism

Design for Organizing, 6:00pm - 7:30pm Register
Life Sized City, 8:00pm - 10:00pm Register

Life-Sized City is a documentary series exploring how our perception of cities is slowly changing from a model of mathematical engineering to a human habitat made by people.

Urban designer Mikael Colville-Andersen explores the anatomy and vibrancy of the modern metropolis, highlighting pockets of life-sized goodness in cities around the world. Speakers include Toody Maher, Corrina Gould and Michael Rios. Moderated by
Informal Urbanism
The Form of Informality 6:00pm - 8:00pm Register

Join us for a series of presentations on the what, why and how of informal settlements in global cities as discussed through the lenses of policy and form, economics, and government. A panel discussion and audience Q&A will follow, offering the opportunity to discuss the future of informal settlements and the differences of informality between the developing and developed world. Speakers include Giselle Mendonca and Priscila Coli.

Edible Urbanism
A Side of Salad: Discussing Urban Agriculture and Access to Healthy Food, 6:00pm - 7:30pm Register

How does farming fit into urban form? Join us in creating yummy treats from locally sourced organic farms. During the process, talk with professionals and advocates to get their take on concepts related to accessing sources of healthy foods. After we eat, we’ll have a discussion about what designers can do to encourage change in communities. Discussants include Diego Ortiz and Alyshia Silva.

(Im)possible Urbanism
Envisioning the future, 6:00pm - 7:30pm Register
D.Y.F. Do Your Future!, 7:30pm - 8:00pm Register

Join us for an interdisciplinary discussion panel with speakers talking about the spatial manifestation of future cities. Speakers include Neyran Turan, Scott Elder and Nicholas de Monchaux.
How the Body makes Marks
Arch Exhibition
9:00AM-4:00PM 04/02 to 04/21
Thursday 04/05 5-7 pm Opening Reception
121 Wurster Hall

How the Body Makes Marks is an exhibition of student drawings collected by Professor Galen Cranz since 2008 to analyze the relationship of somatic experience to drawing and design. This coming May, she will celebrate her retirement from 43 years of teaching in the Architecture Department at UC Berkeley. This exhibition documents the contributions of past and present students to Body Conscious Design's expansion as a field of architectural research and creativity. Curated by Chelsea Rushton.
